GUNNERS DEFEAT STRATHMORE SATURDAY 8-5

The hockey game Saturday night between the Strathmore Red Wings and the Gunners had all the speed, thrills and excitement any fan could wish for before the final whistle blew. The score 8-5 in favor of the Gunners sent the fans home in a happy mood and gave them plenty to talk about for a couple of days. When these two teams meet anything may happen, therefore, there is always a good crowd in attendance. Saturday night was no exception and the crowd of 400 fans got an eyeful.

Before the first period was finished the Red Wings were three goals to the good and the Gunners had a blank sheet. Strathmore set a fast pace and dumped the locals right and left. They dominated the play, kept the puck in Gleichen defensive area most of the time. Every time the Red players got down to the Strathmore end they met a stalwart defence and were on the job every second. Furthermore Red Wing's forward lines were checked furiously. G. Giroux, named the first counter from his brookside. Charlie then returned to his favor by passing to Charlie who bang it home, while the local fans howled advice and groaned. A little later Charlie made another counter this time from Malmberg, accompanied by the cheers of the Strathmore fans and expressions of amazement by the local boosters.

Adjoining to the dressing room, Manager Service must have let loose a verbal blast that stuck in the Gunners' throats till the end of the game. When they came back they proceeded to score every two minutes for eight minutes, getting four goals to the credit. Right after play started L. Brown figured the shortest way to the goal was a straight line and with the puck headed straight for the Red Wing defence, just as he crashed into all three piled in a heap and while defending themselves Gibson picked up the disc and scored. Next counter was made by E. Lester from B. Brown two minutes later. Two minutes more Eugene and Bob did the same stunt this time using the score as the foil gave voice to their approval. Gibson made the fourth counter for the period when he got a pass from Cam Brown. By this time the crowd and players were so worked up they could hardly see offside plays, not so the referees. Almost every time the whistle blew for an offside players of the crowd "awaked" all of which was leading up to a climax. Collins took an offside pass, whistle blew, he didn't like it, took a shot and was puffed at. Referee McKay and missed, got penalty, fight among players seemed possible. George Giroux K. O'd Referee McKay with a right to the face, some spectators jumped on the ice and looked like fools accompanying to the scene of hostilities, pulled got into action, threatened fights and tempers cooled down. After much talk the game proceeded with no more scoring in this period. Gunners were checking hard and did not hesitate to hand out the dunks in this period which they did not do in the first period. Play was very rough.

The third saw Gleichen rattle in a couple of more counters early; Strathmore followed suit after which Gleichen finished up the game with two more. 1st Gibson from W. Marquardt; 2 Gibson from W. Marquardt from C. Brown; 3 Collins from Malmberg; 4 G. Giroux; 5 B. Brown from C. Brown; 6 B. Brown.

Strathmore lineup: Cleave, Ridley, C. Giroux, A. Malmberg, Collins, D. Malmberg, W. Giroux, Dowdy, G. Giroux, Crellin.

Gleichen: Wilson, R. Marquardt, T. Brown, Taylor, B. Brown, E. Lester, W. Lester, C. Brown, Gibson, Clifford, W. Marquardt.

Referee: W. McKay and H. James. Next game in Gleichen: Friday January 8th Strathmore. This is the first league game here this winter.

There was a very good attendance at the auction sale of the effects of the Gleichen Hotel last Thursday. Everything was sold. The hotel is now vacant and George is wondering how he will pay the taxes on the vacant building. Meantime Joe is wondering how he is going to keep the wolf from the door.

LOCAL MASONS CELEBRATE ST. JOHN'S NIGHT

Gleichen Masonic Hall was the scene of activity when the local Lodge of Free Masons met to celebrate St. John's night and to install the newly elected officers for 1937.

Members and visitors from Gleichen, Arrowwood, Milo, Mossleigh, Cluny, Queenstown, Strathmore were present in force along with visitors from Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia.

After the installation ceremony, which was conducted by Rt. Wor. Bro. A. E. Yates, a turkey dinner was thoroughly enjoyed. Following the dinner the usual Masonic and Loyal Oaths were given and responded to by various brethren most nearly concerned, and then all settled down to enjoy a rather lengthy program of songs and speeches and reminiscences. All past the "witching hour" brought in interchange of good wishes for the future and a renewed confidence in all the things that the Masonic Fraternity stands for in the community and the nation.

The following officers were installed for the year 1937: Wor. Master W. J. House; L.P.M. W. Bro. J. F. Jerrill; S. W. Bro. C. Taylor; J. W. Bro. F. Thompson; S. D. Bro. C. Jaskayne; J. D. Bro. H. B. Myers; S. S. Bro. C. Ballard; J. S. Bro. W. Schmidt; L.G. Bro. W. Palmer; Tyler, A. W. Brown; Secretary, W. Bro. T. L. Beach; Treasurer, W. Bro. Lewis; Registrar, W. Bro. Somerville; Chaplain, V. W. Bro. D. McBean.

Norman Schnepp and L. Murry of the Calgary Radio hockey team came down from Calgary to take in the New Year's dance. They have yet to fail to spend New Year's Eve in Gleichen. After all there is no place like home, boys.

Due to an oversight we failed to mention that St. Andrew's Sunday School held an entertainment in the dining room of the Community Hall recently. Different from other years all parents and children sat down as a supper together, which was very much enjoyed. Following the supper all kinds of games were played while the children were waiting for Santa to arrive. Hymns were sung led on the piano by Miss Correll. The singing, however, was interrupted; the lights turned out and Santa arrived with a large sack full of stockings filled with candies, nuts, oranges, and apples for everyone present. A number of presentations were made by the W. A. to all those who had so faithfully helped with the Sunday School work during the past season.

DASHES FROM CRAIGANTLER AND DISTRICT

The Xmas, and New Year's holidays are over and most of the people had a good time at the different school programs. Meadowbrook has had a large crowd for the annual Xmas program and dance.

Cerl Collins was married and brought his bride down from Calgary to spend Xmas. While here he had a number of friends of the district gather at the Craigantler school where dancing was enjoyed until about 2 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Schriber and family will soon be out of quarantine. It is too bad they missed the Xmas programs. Better luck next Xmas.

Lindsay Dankworth was a New Year's guest at the home of Arthur Grant.

Miss Grace Dankworth was a holiday visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Collins and family.

There was a gathering of the Grant and Maclean clans at Hammer Hill C. P. R. headquarters, Xmas Day. It was brightened up by the clan Yule and Sharp and others all had a good time.

Lester Grant is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant at the Deer Lodge farm.

Captain and Mrs. Grant had all the family and grandchildren for New Year's Day, number 21 in all. The day being nice gave them a chance to meet once more.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sheets had a large Xmas, gathering including Mrs. Will Dankworth and family.

GLEICHEN UNITED CHURCH

Rev. J. N. Wilkinson, Minister. Mrs. H. Birch, choir leader. Miss Jean Farquharson, pianist. 11 a.m. Church School. 7:30 p.m. Devine Worship. Subject: "Four-Year Plan."

At the General Council in Ottawa September 1936, a report was presented by the Committee on Evangelism and Social Service and accepted by the Council. This report dealt not alone with individual righteousness but with economic conditions, unemployment, war, armaments etc., and suggested methods of dealing with such matters on a Christian basis. The success of such a scheme as is presented depend upon the co-operation of all churches and congregations. As a matter of information and a basis for thought and study the outline of this plan will be presented.

For boys and girls there will be a talk on "Untruthfulness" with a story about, "Little Scotch Giant."

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

A Scotchman made perhaps the greatest gift ever sent to Western Canada and received nothing in return!

This refers to the introduction into Canada and the West of the famous Red Fife wheat, which was not only of superlative quality itself, but also is one of the parents of Marquis, Reward, Thatcher and other varieties.

It appears that in 1842 David Fyfe of the township of Otonabee, Canada West (now Ontario) asked a friend in Glasgow, Scotland, to send him a little wheat. This friend took a small quantity from a cargo ship which had just arrived from Danzig. David Fyfe received this and seeded it, but only three ears ripened. These were carefully preserved and seeded again and proved to be a wonderful wheat, which was soon given the name of Red Fife.

Red Fife was imported into Manitoba about 1870, and the first shipment of wheat from Western Canada, made in 1874, consisted entirely of Red Fife. This established the high reputation of Canadian wheat on the world's markets.

David Fyfe made little or nothing out of his selection, and the name of his Scottish friend who made the valuable gift is not even known.

Following factors have tended to raise prices: Persistent wet weather in the southern hemisphere lowers the quality and delays the movement of new wheat. Snow covering in Russia insufficient and good precipitation needed. Italian wheat production for 1936 reported as 227 million bushels compared with 284 million in 1935. Continued unsettled European conditions.

Following factors have tended to lower prices: Large U. S. winter wheat acreage indicated, with production slightly over 600 million. Italian corn, rice and potato crops larger in 1936 than in 1935. U. S. Department of Agriculture reports ample world wheat supplies during present crop year. Reports of considerable surplus of Turkish wheat, barley and corn for export this season.

John Rice who had been residing in Eventide for the past four months died in the institution last Thursday at the age of 80 years. He came to Canada from the Old Country over 50 years ago and for the past twenty years has lived in Alberta. He came to Gleichen from Hanna, where his wife still resides. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon.

The New Year's dance staged by the boys of the 22nd Battery was a most successful affair, there being a much larger crowd on hand to bring in the new year than for several years past. As usual the boys excelled themselves in decorating the hall and with the spot-light effects all tended to give a gay and festive air to the dance. A large number of former Gleichen and district people who are now living elsewhere were on hand to meet their old friends.

VICKS VAPOR-NOL

The Relief System

Signs are not lacking that the direct relief system, which has served as a sheet anchor for many unfortunate citizens during the past few years will be shortly curtailed in the near future, if not altogether abolished.

A growing opinion in this country supports the belief that direct relief is perhaps not the best system of caring for the unemployed in the urban centres or even for farmers in the rural districts who have been unfortunate enough to lose their crops on account of the vagaries of Nature and through no fault of their own.

The impression is gaining strength throughout the Dominion that it would be much better to provide work in some form or another as a substitute for direct relief and to make such assistance the care of the necessities of life for themselves and their families, and who are physically able to do so, should be required to render some service in return or such aid.

The accelerating demand for the adoption of the principle of work and wages, moreover, is not confined to those taxpayers who are still able to shift for themselves and to make some contribution towards the care of their more unfortunate brethren, but is subscribed to by a very substantial percentage of the unemployed themselves and the very fact that such a large majority of the unemployed are anxious for work and prefer to maintain independence speaks well for them and for the future of the country.

Fear has frequently been expressed in the newspapers, on the public platform and elsewhere that indefinite continuance of what might be termed the "dole" system would eventually sap the morale of the great bulk of relief recipients and that in course of time they would become complacent about their situation, even to the extent of preferring to be kept in idleness rather than to work and of refusing to work when it again becomes available.

To this fear has been added the dread that this attitude towards work on the part of a minority might gradually permeate through such a substantial percentage of the citizen-body as to eventually constitute a menace to the entire community and thus retard recovery almost indefinitely. If the present system of furnishing aid without requiring some return for it is continued too long.

It is largely in the hope of averting such a tragedy that the movement for substitution of work with wages or services of some kind for direct relief is gaining momentum and it is refreshing to note that support and lead in this direction is being given by many of the unemployed organizations themselves, as well as many individual relief recipients. In recent months these organizations, as well as many organizations of self-supporting citizens have implored governments, municipal, provincial and federal to furnish work for the unemployed and it can almost be taken for granted that recommendations along this line will be made by the Federal Unemployment Commission now engaged in the task of finding a solution for the problem.

It is axiomatic that the only permanent solution of the problem lies in the absorption of all unemployed by industry, including, of course, the agricultural industry; but until this can be done to the extent that unemployment is reduced to normal proportions, it is felt that public work should be provided to as great an extent as possible to bridge the gap; not only in the interests of the taxpayers who will thereby secure some return for heavy expenditures which must be made for relief but in the interests of relief recipients themselves, if only as a matter of preserving their morale, maintaining their self-respect and restoring in them that spirit of independence and confidence which is so essential to the progress of the community as an entity.

In representations which are being made and will be made to the Commission, no doubt, figures will be quoted showing not only the enormous sums which have been spent for direct relief in the past few years but also what might have been achieved had the money been routed through work channels.

It will also unquestionably be demonstrated that there is much work that can be done and many projects undertaken that will set up new assets of value to the country; that some of them can be made more or less self-sustaining and that when these factors are taken into account and the fact that some who will not work will be eliminated, such a policy will cost the country little if any more than the present "dole" system.

Told Many Stories

Party That Searched For Explorers Had Interesting Trip

Sailors on the Discovery II, arriving back in Australia, told many stories of their trip in search of Ellisworth and Kenyon.

On breaking open the skylights of one of the huts of the Byrd expedition a Discovery party was surprised to find that the interior was still hung with colored paper Christmas decorations, left by Byrd's party in 1933. The air inside the hut, they noticed, still smelt of tobacco smoke from the pipes and cigarettes smoked more than two years previously.

The Air Force planes, which contributed largely to the success of the trip, were painted vivid orange. This color, far from camouflaging them, showed the planes up more clearly against a white snow background than any other color.

Although the men said they generally did not feel the low temperatures, it was so cold that they had to wear the hot boiler-room, ice more than 1½ inches thick formed on the steel sides of the ship.

He Asked For It

How lucky are those to whom the gift of reprieve is given, and are not their remarks at times a joy to all of us. As, for instance, that of the veterinary surgeon who found himself in a socially distinguished gathering and to whom a son remarked, in superior tones, "You're a veterinary surgeon, aren't you?" "Yes, I am," replied the vet, "are you ill?"

"Fatalism buying has come to stay." "But a lot of things bought that way haven't!"

Efficiency Of Japan

Supplies Other Countries With Things They Make Themselves

An article in Fortune, New York, says Japan's phenomenal industrial plant can underwrite the world. Beneath the smoking chimneys of six cities, it turns out everything from cotton textiles to turbine generators to tanning rigs. The overwhelming fact about the industry so created is its efficiency. It is so efficient that it sells beer to Germany and American flags to the American Legion. By comparison with U.S. or British enterprises, Japan's is decidedly middle-sized, her real trade is a trade in other people's tastes. Forced by her poverty in raw materials, she buys other people's raw materials and processes them for other people's desires.

The Sport Of Kings

King George VI. will maintain horse racing and breeding stables along the same lines as did his father, George V., as has been announced. It is considered almost essential that the monarch support the sport of kings. King George's horses will have the Royal colors, purple with gold braid and scarlet sleeves. The jockey's black felt cap will bear a gold fringe.

Good Reciprocity

The St. Catharines, Ont., Standard says last year, Canada shipped no less than 24,000,000 pounds of canned fruits to Britain, as compared with 7,000,000 in 1932. And canned vegetables increased from 9,000,000 lbs. to 16,000,000 pounds. There is good reciprocity in this trade; we buy Welsh tinplate exclusively for the canisters. 2183

To Assist Indians

New Program Of Encouragement Announced By Government

A new program of direction and encouragement for Canada's Indian population, designed to establish it permanently on a higher economic plane, was announced by Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of the recently reorganized department of mines and resources.

The primary aim of the scheme, said Mr. Crerar, would be to see each Indian was helped along in the livelihood for which he was best fitted, by location and otherwise.

While many Indians were registered marked success as farmers and others as fishermen, the great bulk of Indians obviously could not be absorbed in such industries since so many of them lived far from the populated areas across the northern half of the Dominion, the minister said.

"The fur trade, our oldest and still one of our largest industries, has its producing field where many Indians live," pointed out Mr. Crerar. "The fur trade requires thousands of operatives, and the Indians by hereditary inclination and training are naturally its most skilled workmen."

The department would aim to improve the Indians' skill as trappers, he said. It would instruct them in the care of furs before disposing of them. It would advise them what trade goods to buy from the standpoint of health, comfort and economy—how much they were able to pay and such things in the wide open spaces. The department would endeavor, too, to keep the Indians posted, through the Indian agents, on current fur prices, to prevent exploitation by irresponsible traders—of whom a few still exist.

Exclusive hunting areas have already been set aside for the Indians in the Northwest Territories. Even outside those huge preserves, no white trapper may obtain a hunting license until he has been a resident for four years.

Shorter Working Hours

Motor Firm Still Looking Towards Establishing Six-Hour Day

William J. Cameron, spokesman for the Ford Motor Company, said that a six-hour day for workmen in the automobile industry is in prospect but industry must prepare itself for the change.

"The greatest prosperity we have ever seen is coming to this country," Cameron declared. "It will be a productive, not a speculative prosperity. We have not seen anything like the wages that will be paid. We have not seen anything like the prosperity that is coming."

Asserting the Ford Motor Company planned to adopt the six-hour day in 1939 but that the depression prevented it, Cameron declared.

"If it is done prematurely, too many difficulties would arise. The industry has to be built up to the six-hour day. It is not ready for it yet."

Fuel Gas Made In Mine

Modern Methods Used In One Of Russia's Republics

Fuel gas is being made from coal in a mine in one of Russia's small republics in Mongolia. Deep in the mine instead of on the surface the coal gas is being extracted by modern methods and conveyed to a factory on the shores of Lake Guian, there to be converted into benzene. Other by-products of the coal gas will be extracted by electricity and a power station is to be built with furnaces heated by the coal and its gas. The electricity will be transmitted to other localities.

Ontario Wants Horses

Pedigree And Grade Stock Are Both In Great Demand

Toronto firms may be mechanizing their delivery systems but demand for horses is on the increase. L. O'Neill, director of the Ontario government livestock branch, said demand for both pedigree and grade horses is greater to-day than for the past few years and prices are higher," O'Neill revealed. "Pedigree horses are in demand at home and for export. Work horses for farms are also in keen demand and prices are very good," he added.

A Real Possibility

It is really pleasant to look forward to the perfection of a new carburetor that will run on 200 miles on a gallon of gasoline, but if the darn thing works, our lawmakers will think of enough new and additional taxes to leave us just a little worse off at present, says the Detroit Saturday Night.

An act of Congress is necessary to reinstate a policeman dismissed from the Washington, D.C., police force.

Leopard Societies

Terrifying Stories Of Murder In West Africa By Secret Cult

Terrifying stories of murder by Liberia's Leopard societies are circulating in its part of the country, despite repeated denials by the Monrovia government.

It is claimed that killings have taken place regularly in the past six months and the campaign is said to be the worst in 50 years. The leopard men are said to have entered houses and carried off children to be murdered, stealing or slaying cows and other livestock. On several occasions the leopards have been observed to have feet like men and to have left human tracks, although they were dressed in leopard skins and walked on all-fours.

A long iron hook, sharpened like a leopard's claw is attached to each hand, and these sharp tools are used to rip open the bodies of their victims.

The "Liberian Patriot," news organ of Monrovia, recently published a self-page plea to the government to take action to end the ancient, bloody cult, but soldiers sent from Monrovia reported on return they had found no sign of the leopard men.

No sooner had they returned to the capital, reports say, than the campaign was resumed—men and children being clawed, carried away and murdered.

The leopard men, forming the odd and most feared of all African secret societies, attack native homes at night and try to keep all men in constant fear of their power.

Europeans are seldom attacked, but strong measures have been taken by all the West African governments to suppress the societies, the hated society. It is generally believed along the African coast that the society now has its headquarters in Liberia.

Have To Be Trained

Dining Car Stewards, Waiters and Chefs Go Through School

The dining car steward knows that out of every 100 diners 45 will order coffee and 15 tea; that 35 will ask for roast beef and the rest will order chicken, fish, chops and steak, in the order named.

America's railway dining cars serve 25,000,000 meals each year, and they are prepared in a kitchen less than seven feet wide and 15 feet long. One man alone must wash 1,000 dishes at each meal in a sink less than two feet square.

Dining car stewards, waiters and chefs go through a training school before going on the road. One large eastern railroad has three such schools where there are reproductions of the space equipment limitations encountered in actual service.—Scientific News.

"UNCLE" JACK MINER

Writes a Book, Entitled

"JACK MINER AND THE BIRDS"

Give It For a New Year's Gift!

Yes—they're wild Swans—but they all love Jack

Every Boy Scout, every school boy and every school girl in Canada now knows of Jack Miner and many, many thousands of adults too, have seen him and heard him talk (you can't call it a lecture) about his work for the preservation of wild life. He is called by authorities "one of the world's great naturalists."

Perhaps you won't believe his idea of a place where wild bird life would be protected during migration North and South—the birds found out about it before the public did—and finally add had to be given to him by corn to feed the geese, ducks, swans in their thousands upon thousands who settled in his ponds and rested unmolested.

Perhaps you can't travel half way across Canada to see this sight but let us tell you it's a thrill of a lifetime. To you and those like you it is possible to read Jack's own words in his 207 page book, and through the 58 pictures get a good idea of the work that's going on.

Jack is not a money maker—he's a poor man, actually—if people had not contributed when they saw what a wonderful thing was being done he could not have continued. He charges no admission fees—sells no souvenirs and his only hard and fast rules for visitors are "no bad language to be used" and that "everything is shut tight on Sundays".

Jack is 71 (born April 10, 1865) and only occasionally gets away for a radio talk or lecture now—he's hale and hearty but very busy around home.

Autos line up for miles every spring and fall. The fence you see was built by an admirer of Jack's

People come from all over the world to see the Jack Miner Sanctuary—his work has encouraged others to do the same thing elsewhere, so making Jack very happy.

Every home should have this book because besides birds it discusses a homely philosophy of life which, if followed, would make us all happy. It impresses children and adults alike with its genuineness and rugged honesty.

Now if you want this new book, "Jack Miner and the Birds"—207 pages—see photographs—just go to your stationery store and order it or if you can't get it there write to the Copp Clark Co., Ltd., 495 Wellington Street, W., Toronto—the Canadian agents—and they'll see that you do get it.

A New Experiment

Shows How Long People Can Do Without Water

Experiments at the University of Michigan medical school have shown that a man can do without water until he has lost six per cent of his body weight.

According to Dr. Frederick A. Coler, an average adult, weighing 150 pounds, would not show serious signs of dehydration until he has lost nine pounds from lack of water. This loss would occur in two or three days and the skin would become dry and hot, the tongue dry and leathery, the eyes sunken.

Writing in Modern Medicine, Coler states that a person needs at least 2,000 cubic centimeters of water a day to replace the average daily loss of moisture by vaporization through the skin and lungs. There are also other avenues of water escape.

Coler undertook the experiment to determine how much water should be allowed a patient recovering from an operation.

Capt. Oscar Wisting, who was command on his polar expedition, was found dead of a heart attack in his old cabin on Amundsen's polar ship Fram, which had been installed permanently in the Bygone Museum in Oslo. He was 85 years old. Capt. Wisting was one of the four men chosen by Amundsen to accompany him across the ice to the south pole in 1910.

A Counting Rebuke

London Policeman Was Polite To American Jay Walker

Sir M. Horb-Belsham took over the job of minister of transport in Britain a lot of notions have been introduced in order to reduce traffic accidents. There are the Belsham beacons, stop signals that can be set against traffic in not-so-busy areas when a nervous pedestrian or school children want to cross the street, by simply pressing a button, and there are hidden loud-speakers at other places which bawl automatic warnings to unwary people.

An American visiting in London recently relates that he was bawled out in the most polite manner by a soft-spoken. Dodging his way across the street he was met at the other side by a smiling policeman who said, "Excuse me, sir, but when you are crossing the street it is advisable to make use of the pedestrian crossings whenever possible. It may prevent an accident."

That is a printable rebuke.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA CRAIG

Starr's eyes drooped, and a faint flush touched her cheeks.

"— Oh, I mean it all seems so—rather cold-blooded, Lance—the whole arrangement you're proposing. I've always thought that—well, that love ought to have something to do with it."

"I'll teach you to love me, Starr!" he said eagerly, as his hand crushed her slight fingers until she winced as the antique Egyptian ring pressed into the tender flesh.

She glanced up into his amorous eyes, shook her head a little, and there was a far-away expression on her face.

"I wonder," she said softly. "I wonder if I ever will know what love really is. I don't know."

He laughed a little shortly. "And I don't know why I'm mad about you, but I am."

Starr's black eyes twinkled. "Shall I tell you?" It became I'm probably the first woman when you set your determination to possess me, you didn't fall for you the first minute you snapped your fingers."

Lance's arm slid around her, and he bent over to kiss her.

"If you will fall for me, young lady!" he laughed confidently, then a little arrogantly. "You don't know me when I get really started."

"I know you have a good line," Starr smiled, and Lance nodded.

"Quite so," he remarked. "That's what I've been told. Properly heated, but never hard-boiled."

Badinage was not enough for Lance Marlowe, however. He very quickly got to the point of pressing his questionable suit with Starr, and then she suddenly realized—just how it had come about she did not know—but she had given Lance Marlowe her promise to give him his answer that night. At whatever party it was they were to attend, Starr didn't trouble to ask where it would be. Parties were parties—just so she could keep moving and have no chance to think.

"If she accepted him in the sense he wanted to be accepted, she was to wear his bracelet, and then he knew his luck. He would know that she belonged to him, was willing to be his current light of love."

She was still stalling for time, a little frightened by Lance's insistent eagerness. At last she told him, rather shakily, trying to recapture a fragment of her daring "Play-Girl" camouflage.

"A bride is allowed time to arrange her trousseau, Lance. Haven't a mere mistress the same privilege?"

"All right, Starr. If she can make it snappy."

She wished he wouldn't talk quite so much. She wanted to think, a chance to be quiet. As greatly as she had wanted him to come to relieve her loneliness, now she wanted him to go away, so that she could try to figure it all out. And her brain was already so racked from too much thinking!

Finally Lance, too, got restless, and suggested a drive. That appealed to Starr far more than just sitting there in this quiet room, tête-à-tête with the man whom it might be she soon would see far more of than she cared to see. She jumped to her feet.

"Be with you in a minute, old thing," she said gaily. "As quickly as I can slip into something that will not cause so much excitement on the avenue as this rag might."

It was a golden afternoon when they started out in Lance's expensive car, though growing a little late. The sky was still light and there was a touch of Autumn haze and the smell of Autumn in the air which somehow manages to make its way into the streets of New York in spite of the skyscrapers and lack of trees. Lance drove across town and they turned into the Park. He drove aimlessly, because this strange, moodily "Play-Girl" had told him as soon as she snuggled down beside him that she wanted to be very quiet, and think over their affairs.

She was thinking. There must be a little peace somewhere in the world, if she could only find it. Did it lie with Lance?

After all, why not let Lance provide quiet, luxurious settings for the rest of her short days? It was the easiest way. Life surely owed her much, after the shabby den it had handed her.

Marrying with Michael would have been cheating. But she would not be cheating Lance. She had plenty to offer him in return for anything he offered her. Lance did not want a wife, nor a home. All he wanted was a scintillating mistress, one who would make his life a series of ups and downs. Well, she could be that to him.

In a few months he would be tired of her, just as he had tired of his other flames. . . . All right. In a few months it would not matter. Starr was mindful of the whimsical words she had spoken to colored Sapphire.

"A puff of wind will break the glass; then there'll be no more Starr."

Unconsciously she voiced aloud the question around which all of her thoughts pivoted, forgetting her reputation—the reputation of "Play-Girl" who had had too many lovers:

"Is there any virtue in remaining good when everybody thinks you're bad?" It was the old question—that of the game and the candle.

And then she awoke to a realization of Lance's presence. He was staring at her with his keen, restless eyes, as if he were waiting for the new he had desired since his first set eyes on her. His thin eyebrows were raised, his mouth a crooked, sardonic line.

"My dear Starr," he drawled amuseously, "you are talking too queerly to-day. Was it too much champagne last night?"

Starr flushed. Delicate eyelids drooped, shading her long, wistful eyes from him.

Unconsciously he murmured, wondering what the servants would say or think when they found that flower bowl.

She must snap out of this mood. This was not the time of mistletoe. Lance Marlowe wanted to adorn his perch. He demanded gaiety, vivacity, sophistication.

She noticed suddenly that they had left the Park behind and were on the Avenue. Lance nodded again. She turned to Lance questioningly.

"Where are we going?"

He grinned at her. "To congratulate the bride-to-be."

"Stephanie Dale?" A sharp breath caught in her throat. "But I don't want to see Stephanie! I don't like her!"

"Stephanie wants to see you," Lance remarked with decision. "She particularly asked me to bring you to her house. She's waiting downstairs. There was a peculiar light in Lance's eyes. For a moment Starr had a suspicion that he guessed her secret. Why? Why should Stephanie want to see her? What extra humiliation was this? She would not stand for it! She couldn't stand any more.

Incredibly enough, as she shortly discovered when Stephanie came to greet them in the drawing room of her old home, with all her ancient portraiture looking down from the walls, Stephanie wanted to apologize to Starr Ellison. She did it very prettily. She was like a complacent little pink and white doll when things were going her way, as they were at present. No one would ever imagine that words of violence could fall from soft lips, or venous show in her supple eyes.

"I'm terribly sorry for some of the things I said to you last morning to Starr," "I hope you'll believe that it was just because I didn't understand, and when a girl loves some one—"

She sighed and there was an expression in her eyes that said of course "Play-Girl" could not be expected to understand the true meaning of love or its nuances—"

"When I realized that you were not Michael at all—a secret between Michael and me, of course—"

Her eyes said that though Starr might not be Michael's "Play-Girl," that there was no question of Starr's fitness for the role—when I found out that Michael was just paying you to do the things you did; that the whole thing was planned because of his great love for me—"

Starr winced. Stephanie was subtly rubbing it in. But her bland blue eyes were childlike and innocent. Too innocent. She rattled on:

"I'm giving a week-end party in honor of Michael at our home in Westchester this week. Miss Ellison and I are driving up there this afternoon. It has to be done all in a hurry because—well, because everything will be busy from now on. We just can't wait to be married, now that Merv and Faith have finally given their consent—"

(She said that as though she and her blessed parents were doing a favor to Michael). . . . I'm counting on you to be one of my house party guests. Miss Ellison. You have played such an important part in bringing about Michael's success. I want all of Michael's friends to share in our happiness."

Oh, no! That was too much! When Starr had ordered Michael out of her apartment, she had sworn to herself that she would never see him again. She could not bear to see his proud, contemptuous face. To know how much he was hating her, and how unfair it was how terribly unfair! But that was how life had always been to her—unfair.

It was not right to ask her to spend a week-end with Stephanie and Michael, watching them in their love in secluded corners, constantly hearing all about their plans for their wedding.

Stephanie's sapphire blue eyes probed Starr's mask. Did she suspect, too? Was this coyness, or was this a cloak to hide her real motive, a desire to avenge herself upon Starr by parading her man before the eyes of the girl who had lost?

Lance had strolled up to the two, carrying his cocktail glass. Just in time to hear Stephanie urging Starr to be a guest at her house party. He had heard nothing of what Stephanie previously had said. In spite of her remarks to Starr, too, it was quite obvious that Stephanie had no desire to clear Starr Ellison's reputation in anybody's eyes. She was quite willing to keep the secret for the publishing company—and for Michael.

She was complacent about allowing everybody else to continue thinking Starr the notorious "Play-Girl." Having Starr as her guest would be considered magnanimous on Stephanie's part.

Before Starr realized what it was all about, Lance was accepting Stephanie's invitation for her. His manner was most possessive, as though she no longer had any will of her own.

"Of course she'll come, Stephanie," Lance was saying suavely. "Starr never refuses an invitation, no matter what the reason for it. Do you, Starr?"

No, Starr never refused a party. She must remember her role. That was her life—hers and Lance's. Rushing from one gay party to another. With never a breathing spell in between, because the breathing spells were such agony.

Lance said: "I'll drive her up on Saturday night, Stephanie. That is, if I'm invited, too."

Stephanie gave a tinkling little laugh. "Silly man, of course you are!"

Starr's sigh of resignation was only toward. Well, anyway, a week-end at Stephanie's would delay her surrender to Lance. Starr reflected bitterly that that was all to which she had been left to cling—a day-by-day saving off of the inevitable Starr."

Found It Great Help

Man Visited Museum So He Could Not Smoke

A friendly guard at the Metropolitan Museum told us, the last time we were in there, about a mysterious man who for the past three months had been waiting on the doorstep every morning at ten, when the Museum opened. He was well dressed, but always unshaven, and looking as if he had just got out of bed, flung on his clothes, and made a dash for the Museum. Once inside, though all he did was sit on a bench, unfold the Times, and read it in hour or so. One morning he had noticed guard looking at him, and had said testily, "I suppose you're wondering why I come here. I'm trying to stop smoking, and I have to be some place where they won't let me smoke. I've brooded for a while, then amplified his explanation. ## Proud Of His Work

Summer Is Busy Season For French-Canadian Tattoo Artist

The business of "Professor" Joe Layvie, French-Canadian tattoo artist, has gone to his head. As proof he duffs his hat and exhibits a likeness of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, famous Canadian statesman, tattooed there.

Joe, exterior decorator of hundreds of sailors from ocean and lake boats, entering Montreal harbor, claims he is the only man in Canada with a tattooed scalp.

Layvie is proud of his "masterpieces" the work of 25 years. His best, he says, has travelled to the South Pole on the broad back of Richard Byrd, seaman on Admiral Byrd's second expedition to the Antarctic. Dickie now lives in Vancouver.

Summer is the rush season for the professor. Then the boat crews arrive. Some lake boat sailors, he said, have their work executed in instalments, so much each time their freighter reaches port. Complicated designs take 10 hours to finish.

Most popular motif asked for is the United States flag, though 85 per cent. of his customers are Canadian and Europeans. Hearts and anchors also are popular, while an occasional client asks for a tombstone with appropriate wording. Joe has just time to beat Stephanie urging Starr to be a guest at her house party. He had heard nothing of what Stephanie previously had said. In spite of her remarks to Starr, too, it was quite obvious that Stephanie had no desire to clear Starr Ellison's reputation in anybody's eyes. She was quite willing to keep the secret for the publishing company—and for Michael.

New Chinese Weights

Official Weights And Measures Adopted By National Government

The shi picul, the shi mow, and the shi canty are the official weights and measures recently adopted by the National Government of China, and in view of the Canadian agricultural products imported by that country should be of interest to Canadian farmers and statisticians. The shi picul is the unit in which all production estimates are given, equalling 100,231 pounds, or 50 kilograms; the shi mow, in reporting acreage, is equal to 0.16474 acre or 6.56647 acres; and the shi canty, used for smaller weights, is equivalent to one-hundredth of a shi picul, or 1.0231 pounds. The shi picul must not be confused with the one-hundred-and-thirty-three-and-a-third-pound picul, formerly used in the Chinese Maritime Customs and still in general use in Sino-foreign commerce through-out China.

The Rule In Spain

Country Was Always On Verge Of Civil War

The story goes that General Narvaez, one of the many Spanish dictators in the 19th century, was asked on his death-bed by the priest: "Does your excellency forgive your enemies?" And the dying man replied in a firm voice: "I have no enemies! I have shot them all!" The anecdote might well serve as a motto for so much of what is happening in Spain to-day and is full of teaching for the outside world. In fact Spain, since the start of the Peninsula War in 1808, has never known civil peace of the ordinary European type, and its quietest periods have been those in which violence curbed by ruthless dictators had to confine itself to the assassination of leading statesmen. Civil war was the rule, not the exception.—London Spectator.

Very Obliging

Traffic Officer: "Where's the fire? Do you realize you were making 50 miles an hour in the residential section?"

Flapper Flo: "Nonsense, I was going only 25; in fact, I don't believe I was making 15."

Officer: "Very well then, I'll treat this ticket up and give you one for parking."

When a man's conversation begins to dwell on what he used to be, he's through.

Knew Queen As Child

Druggist In Toronto Saw Little Elizabeth Very Often

There's a druggist in Toronto who used to pick up the new Queen of England when she was a little girl and plunk her on a scales several times a week to see how she was doing in the way of weight.

He's George Mills, lean and Scotch-Scottish, one of the T. Eaton Company drug department.

He told how little Elizabeth, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, wearing a sailor hat and dress, used to walk into the "chemist shop" at which he was stationed during the winter months of 1914, in Borden, on the Italian Riviera.

She was accompanied sometimes by her mother; sometimes by her nurse. Like all other little girls, she loved to wander around the store and explore its contents.

Like all other little girls, too, she got a big kick out of getting a "sweet" from the chemist.

Little Helps For This Week

Continue in prayer and watch in the same with thanksgiving. Col. 4:2. Temperature: 200°-215° F.

We kneel how weak, we rise how full of power. Why therefore should we do ourselves this wrong. Or others—that we are not always strong.

That we are ever overcome with grief. That we should ever weak or heartless be. Anxious or troubled, when with us is prayer.

And joy and strength and courage are with These.

It is prayer, meditation and converse with God that refreshes and renews the temper of our minds at all times, under all trials, and after all conflicts with the world. By this contact with the world unseen we receive continual accesses of strength. Without this healing and refreshing of the spirit duties grow to be burdens, the events of life chafe our temper, and we become fretful, irritable and impatient.

Not Very Consistent

Many People Are As Thoughtless As Montreal Firm

Montreal recently made a vigorous effort for a Clean-Up Week. The idea was strenuously boosted from two different aspects. Firstly, there was the cleaning-up of the city, and secondly, the giving of employment. The idea was warmly supported by a firm manufacturing a well-known cleanser. It even went to the length of distributing badges which on one side bore the words "Clean-Up Week" and on the back had a picture of a cleanser at work. Later on, to the horror of the aldermen, who pointed out that there were many Montreal printers and lithographers among the unemployed, it was discovered that all these badges were printed in Chicago.—Municipal World.

Seems Strenuous Job

Life Span Of United States Presidents Is Growing Less

According to Neal O'Hare, in New York Post, statistics show the life span of United States Presidents is narrowing. The average age of our first ten Chief Executives was seventy-seven years at the time of their deaths. Ten Presidents in the middle of the list attained an average of sixty-seven before dying, but the last ten deceased, Presidents' passed away at the average age of sixty-four. (The three Presidents assassinated were not reckoned in this computation.)

They call them the Thousand Islands, but from Lake Ontario to Brockville in the St. Lawrence River there are actually 1,662 of them.

Expect Census Will Show That Belief In God Has Disappeared

Russia ordered a survey of religion among the people, expecting to find growing disbelief in God.

Whether he believes in God will be one of the five principal questions to be asked of each citizen over 16 in the national census. The other questions will ask name, age, occupation, and whether married.

Expecting the census will show belief in God has practically disappeared from the Soviet Union, newspapers have published articles urging the people to answer frankly reminding that the answers will be secret and those who still profess faith are entitled to freedom of worship by constitutional guarantee.

If you do not believe in God, say so even if you were baptized and once worshipped." Moscow newspaper declared.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

Some countries have so many people that they cannot grow enough wheat for all.

Some countries have so much land and so few people they have wheat to sell.

These nations which are obliged to buy wheat are called "Wheat Importing Countries," while those with wheat to sell are called "Wheat Exporting Countries."

About 650 million bushels of wheat this year, it is expected, will be purchased by the importing countries from exporting countries.

This amount of 650 million is about 10 per cent of the world's total annual production.

Canada is the largest wheat exporting country, selling overseas annually a little more than 200 million bushels. Great Britain is the largest importing country, buying about 100 million bushels each year.

The wheat grown on our Canadian prairies finally travels abroad to some 72 different countries. It would be an interesting exercise if boys and girls would make a list—then mark them on a map—of the 72 foreign countries which buy the wheat their parents and neighbors grow.

It would still be more interesting if in addition students would note the products or goods which each of these foreign countries sells to Canada and to other nations, which sales enable them to purchase Canadian wheat.

The editor of this paper has made arrangements with Mr. Strange by which he will correct and return any lists prepared by school students, and sent to him before Feb. 1st. Mr. Strange informs us that he would be glad to give a small prize for the neatest and most accurate list sent to him.

Town & District

Miss Laura Murray of Lethbridge was visiting with Gleichen friends during the holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Boos of Rocky Mountain House spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. Boos.

Miss Nora Downey of the Holy Cross hospital staff, Calgary spent a short holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Downey.

Saturday the weather moderate, and Sunday it was comparatively mild, but since then the weather has turned colder much to the disgust of many people.

Arthur Brown of Amherstburg Ont., is at present visiting relatives here and expects to stay for some weeks. In Ontario Arthur holds down a job on a boat.

John Whipple of Eventide home died last week the funeral taking place at Eventide cemetery. Mr. Whipple came to Gleichen from Kappen, Alberta a little less than a month ago.

Following the usual custom being the first Saturday in January the local scores do not keep open on Saturday nights. This will continue for the next couple of months or so.

Mrs. W. W. Brown of Lethbridge is at present visiting relatives and friends in town. This is the first time for some years that all the members of her family have been together at the same time.

The most beautiful decorations for the holiday season ever seen in Gleichen was displayed by Raymond Menard on the exterior of the home of his father, J. A. Menard. The front of the house was strung with lights of various colors, while at the chimney stood Santa Claus with a spot light playing on him. The display caused many to pause and admire the beauty of it. Santa Claus especially appealed to the little tots. In front of the house Raymond had a lighted sign wishing all the compliments of the season. About town many complimentary remarks were heard regarding the fine display.

Saturday two games were postponed owing to no ice being available. Altogether 12 games are on the schedule to be played. If you have not attended one of these games do so by all means it will not cost you anything. You will see plenty to amuse you and note the boys improve as the season advances. The periods are only 15 minutes long and during that time the boys take their hockey seriously and play with all the enthusiasm of youth. The games are scheduled to take place at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday afternoon and two games on Saturday morning beginning at 10 o'clock.

OLD SUN HOCKEY CLUB LOSES TO MOSSLEIGH CLUB

The Old Sun School hockey team in a New Year's Day game at Mossleigh came out on the short end of a 7-6 score against the Mossleigh team. Both teams were evenly matched but the Mossleigh boys had a decided weight advantage. The game opened with both teams getting away to a fast start but rough ice broke up a number of what might have been scoring plays. However, before the game was five minutes old Douglas Many Heads, a fast skating right wing player took a neat pass from Charlie McMaster and rang up the first tally for Old Sun. A few minutes later Mark Wolf Leg, defence player, on a lone rush took the puck through the Mossleigh team to score the second goal. By this time the Mossleigh boys began to pull up their socks and get organized and in a series of fast combination plays were able to pop in three quick goals before the period ended.

Play in the second opened with both teams appearing a bit ragged and a solo rush on the part of Gordon Yellow-fly netted Old Sun's only goal during this period. Mossleigh during same time scored twice.

Play in the final round found the Indian boys running to go. The play was fast and furious. Old Sun got into its stride and produced its usual brand of hockey, fast and open. In a rush headed by Joe Old Woman, left winger, the Old Sun forward line went through the Mossleigh defence and a pretty pass from Joe to Charlie McMaster resulted in another goal for the Indian boys. Mossleigh was forced to play a defensive game but still failed to stop Douglas Many Heads who in a flashy single attack scored again. Mossleigh rallied and beat Arthur Youngman. Old Sun goalie. Old Sun came right back with a rush through centre and receiving a pass from Charlie McMaster, Douglas Many Heads scored once more. The pace set by the Indian boys began to tell on Mossleigh team, yet in the closing minutes were they were to break away and score their winning goal.

Here and There

Opening three weeks earlier this year with a 15-inch snow fall on December 2, the skiing season in Quebec province was off to a flying start with special Canadian Pacific trains as well as regulars carried with enthusiasm on the first week-end thereafter from Montreal to the Laurentians.

The Empress of Britain will start the winter cruise season from New York December 29 on a New Year voyage to the West Indies and Cuba. It will carry its own night club of Broadway entertainers and a smart dance band. The Empress of Australia, between January 7 and March 26 will make six cruises of eight, nine, ten, 16 and 18 day duration to the West Indies, all from New York.

Gift of a visit home for Christmas and New Year was the unusual present suggested for the year end by G. E. Carter, general passenger agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal, as he explained the company's pre-paid ticket plan for sending transportation to relatives and friends. Arrangement of details of such visits is extremely simple, Mr. Carter said, and tickets cost no more despite use of telegraph in case of emergency and the guarantee that the tickets will reach the right person. This service is not confined to Christmas and New Year but is particularly popular at this season.

Canadian and world skiing enthusiasts will have an opportunity to test the Rocky Mountains' claim of having ski facilities equal to any where the Dominion championships of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association are held from March 6 to 8 on the steep slopes of 8,275-foot Mount Norquay, four miles from the Canadian Pacific Railway station at Banff.

According to announcement by Canadian Pacific Communication Department Christmas and New Year's greetings of pre-arranged messages sent to the public this year. Within Eastern or within Western Canada they will be accepted at the low rate of 25 cents. Between eastern and western Canada and from points in eastern and western Canada to points in the U.S.A. they will be accepted at 40 cents. Rates are subject to government tax.

A gift to the Province of Ontario from the Kerry Hill Flock Book Society, in North Wales, tea and one ram, of the world famous Kerry Hill sheep are now at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. The gift was arranged through W. Rupert Davies, President and Editor of the Kingston "White Standard", and the sheep, known in Wales as "apple-faced rams", are expected to prove extremely popular with stock breeders across Canada. Experts consider the Kerry Hill sheep an outstanding breed, noted for their adaptability to any environment, and for their general utility.

Canadian Pacific semi-streamlined, air-conditioned trains which have been a feature of railway development this year, have had a big reaction on Christmas presents and are now being shown in many of the big department stores in the form of models. These miniature trains are having great success with the kiddies who are given rides in them in the stores and then have the opportunity of setting off toy trains for Christmas, built on the same lines as the miniature.

Millions of "Little Savings" Make Up Life Insurance

LIFE INSURANCE ASSETS—large in the aggregate—actually consist of the "little savings" of more than 3,500,000 Canadian policyholders. The great majority of these policyholders are men and women of moderate means, whose thrift often involves personal sacrifice.

Sharing in the protection and financial security of Life Insurance, are people from every walk in life—including thousands upon thousands of wage earners whose individual savings are necessarily small. That is why Life Insurance is rightly regarded as Canada's greatest co-operative enterprise.

Consider what your savings in Life Insurance mean to you and your dependants, in protection and peace-of-mind. Then you can realize what millions of similar savings mean to the people of Canada.

These combined savings in Life Insurance, which total more than Two Billion Dollars, are invested so that every obligation to policyholders and beneficiaries may be promptly and fully met.

Day after day, year after year, "little savings" in Life Insurance accomplish great things in aiding the widows and fatherless—in educating children—in making older men and women financially independent.
